

ABSTRACT

Described is a player activated game system, particularly adapted for playing instant lottery type games, that includes a game device having a 5 computer containing at least one game, an electronic display and a card interface adapted to receive a game card having data that represents a particular game outcome such that connection of the card to the interface can result the game being played by the device with the particular outcome displayed on the display.